

The phrase comes from the title of a novel by

Joseph Heller (1961) set in the US Air Force

2nd world war. The hero, an American ^{journalist} bombardier, wishes to avoid combat duty down which he has to be judged insane but since everyone wishes to avoid combat duty it is obviously sane if he must therefore be fit for duty.