See me here,

I am alive and living,

Mumbling to myself about love.

Muttering, so no-one can hear,

Over my shoulder or near.

Now muttering, about me and you,

Don't say anything about us,

For they will split us up.

As they do not agree.

In fact they hardly speak to us,

As they don't like me.

Because I say what I want,

I know I love you.
