

Like flowers

In taking life to live and breathe,
Alive and give and take and be.
And keep on growing, shine so bright,
Until one day we'll fade away,
We'll wither, go astray and sleep,
We'll crumble to dust and be free,
Of fetters tied to living earth.